

INTAN AZURA MOKHTAR

MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT

Singapore

Dr. Intan Azura Mokhtar is a Singaporean politician and a current Member of Parliament (MP). She was first elected in the 2011 General Election as part of a six-member PAP team in Ang Mo Kio Group Representation Constituency (GRC). Her team was re-elected in 2015 General Election.

She started volunteering in 2006 at Mendaki, where she assisted in a scholarships interview panel and empowerment programme for girls. Later on, she volunteered at, and sat on the board of directors of the Singapore Muslim Women's Association.

Dr. Intan is a published author in peer-reviewed journals and has presented her research work at conferences on the Singapore education system, information and media literacy, teaching and learning in higher education, and on social and education policies. She has also won various awards in her line of work, including the Faculty Service Award from the Abu Dhabi University, the NTU Outstanding Young Alumni Award, the NUS Outstanding Science Alumni Award, the NUS Outstanding Young Alumni Award, and the Asia-Pacific Educational Research Association Young Researcher Award.

Dr. Intan graduated with a bachelor's degree in physics from the National University of Singapore (NUS) before moving on to complete a postgraduate diploma in education at the National Institute of Education in Nanyang Technological University (NTU). She obtained a Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy in information studies from NTU's Wee Kim Wee School of Communication and Information. She also holds a Master of Public Administration from NUS's Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy.

SESSIONS

>> WOMEN'S POLITICAL PATHWAYS: EXPERIENCES FROM FEMALE ASEAN POLITICIANS