

JAMES CRABTREE

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR IN PRACTICE

Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy

James Crabtree is Associate Professor of Practice at the Lee Kuan Yew School, as well as a fellow at its Centre on Asia and Globalisation (CAG). Previously James worked for the Financial Times, most recently leading coverage of Indian business as Mumbai bureau chief. His best-selling 2018 book, "The Billionaire Raj: A Journey Through India's New Gilded Age" was short-listed for the FT / McKinsey book of the year. He is now a columnist for Nikkei Asian Review, and also a non-resident fellow at the Asia-Pacific programme at Chatham House. Prior to journalism, James was a senior policy advisor in the UK Prime Minister's Strategy Unit under Prime Ministers Tony Blair and Gordon Brown.
