

NITISH CHANDAN

MASTER IN PUBLIC POLICY CANDIDATE

Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy

A conversationalist, researcher and policy advocate who specialises in cyber law, data privacy, crime investigation and policy research. Prior to joining the LKY school, he has worked with the Cyber Peace Foundation as Manager for Training and Policy initiatives. In this capacity, he worked with stakeholders like UNICEF, Facebook, Google, National Commissions for Women and Protection of Child Rights in India, etc. He has also curated two field handbooks on cyber crime investigation for law enforcement agencies. Recipient of the Cyber Blogger of the Year, 2015 award by the Government of Maharashtra in India, he co-founded The Cyber Blog India, which is one of the leading blogs on citizen awareness in India. He has conducted and led over 300 community workshops and over 100 law enforcement capacity building workshops. His interests lie in areas like mitigating international cyber conflict, internet rights, data privacy and protection, regulation of disruptive technology, combating child sexual abuse online, technology against sex trafficking and building online resilience against cyber crimes and attacks.

📅 SESSIONS

» PEACETECH: TECHNOLOGY FOR PEACE & SOCIAL HARMONY – A TED-TALK SERIES