Social Capital in Singapore

The Power of Network Diversity

Vincent Chua, National University of Singapore, Gillian Koh, National University of Singapore, Ern Ser Tan, National University of Singapore and Drew Shih

Series: Politics in Asia

Meritocracy poses a paradox: On one hand, it integrates individuals through frameworks of equal treatment, equal justice and opportunity regardless of race, language or religion. On the other hand, individuals are then segregating through academic sorting, which also results in elite identification, bonding and social stratification. The remedy proposed is network diversity which is the organic forming of ties across class and other social boundaries. This hypothesis has been tested in the case of Singapore society and the empirical results from the research on the power of network diversity and bridging social capital are found in this volume.
