

Inclusive and Participatory Methods for Policy Making

Inclusivity and participatory methods are crucial in policymaking as they ensure a diverse range of perspectives are considered, fostering more comprehensive and equitable solutions.

Through interactive and hands-on sessions, this programme will explore comprehensive frameworks and methodologies to engage a wide range of stakeholders and navigate the complexities of policy development.

Case studies will provide participants with real-world practitioner examples of inclusive policymaking in action and offer valuable insights into successful approaches and challenges faced in diverse policy contexts.

Participants will have the opportunity to design and develop their own inclusive policymaking project. Guided by expert facilitators, they will apply the frameworks and strategies learned to create a project tailored to address specific policy challenges.

WHO SHOULD COME

- Policy officers or analysts managing public engagement or policy co-creation
- Policy consultants, community organizations, non-profits, and NGOs handling public communication or citizen engagement
- Individuals and professionals interested in advanced citizen engagement beyond traditional consultation methods

WHAT YOU WILL GAIN

- Explore frameworks and methodologies for engaging stakeholders and navigating policy development through interactive sessions.
- Valuable insights from real-world case studies that showcase inclusive policymaking in action, including successful approaches and challenges faced in diverse policy contexts.
- The opportunity to design and develop your own inclusive policymaking project, guided by expert facilitators, and apply the learned frameworks and strategies to address specific policy challenges.

Explore strategies and frameworks to ensure inclusivity in policy formulation

Immerse yourself in methods that enhance stakeholder engagement

Gain practical knowledge through hands-on projects that link theory and application

